

SALT NEWS

Coming Track Meet Will Be Strenuous

Realized That Salt Lake School Will Have Hard Work to Hold First Place.

Graduate Manager George Riser is busily engaged making preparations for the annual high school state track meet, which will be held under the direction of the University during the early part of May. Ogden and Park City, through their managers, have already indicated their willingness to compete in this year's meet under the same regulations as governed last year's contest.

Within the coming week Manager Riser will probably call a meeting of the managers of the various high school track teams and submit to them the conditions under which the meet will be held. Medals will again be awarded the winners of the various events, and the expenses of the visiting teams will be assumed by the University.

Last year's meet was a brilliant success and high school athletes throughout the State are anxiously awaiting the second year's meet. Last year, the Salt Lake High school carried off the honors of the contest after a close fight with their inveterate rivals, the Ogdenites. Already Capt. Richmond and the other husky warriors of the red and black have begun active training, and for some time they have been working out under Coach Callahan's back of the team again and under his guidance the Westerners look for another brilliant performance.

Ogden is also awake, and frequent reports coming from there have it that the function athletes have a surprise in store for the Salt Lake team. Last year, Ogden made a splendid fight and kept the locals guessing until the last event was over. Many of the old men in fact, a majority of them are back at school this year, and this in itself assures a good showing for Ogden.

Park City is yet new at the game, but it is understood that several college men residing in the mining town are taking hold of the school boys and putting them in shape for the meet. In this event Park City will become a strong asset for the honors. Last year the Park had some good material, but the men were green and showed an utter lack of training. Give the students of the mining town ordinary training, put them wise to a few main stunts in the game, and Park City will not long be found in the rear ranks.

In addition to these three schools the East Side High school will probably be found as one of the contenders in this year's meet. Last year the students of this school put out a football team that made a good showing, and it is more than probable that a track team will be organized within the very near future.

MEET IN SPOKANE.

League Magnates to Decide on Extent of Circuit.

Special to The Tribune.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 14.—President Williams of the Spokane team announced tonight that plans are completed for a meeting of the Pacific National team-owners in this city tomorrow. A line-up of the clubs will be determined at the meeting, and the schedule for games will be arranged. Among those expected at the meeting are W. D. Risher, president, Salt Lake; H. L. Shepard of the Salt Lake team; C. H. Lane of Butte; E. Hammond of Boise; and C. H. Williams of Spokane. Invitations have been sent to Ogden and Helena to be represented. Great Falls has expressed a wish to come into the league and may be represented in place of Helena. Boise is determined to come in and 20 citizens have subscribed to stock for a team. The meeting will determine whether the league is to be a four-team league or a six-team league. If Ogden and either Helena or Great Falls come in it will be a six-team league.

L. D. S. U. TRACK LEAGUE.

Organization Formed to Bring Out Latest Talent.

A league was formed between the several departments of the L. D. S. U. yesterday for the purpose of encouraging track athletics. It is said that there is a great deal of fine track material in the city, which has not yet been persuaded to come out and race. It is said that this can be thought of to get them out.

The high school department met later in the day and appointed Lester Bishop as their chairman and Julius Thomas and George Tanner to take charge of their athletics. The other departments will meet later.

O. S. L. Bowlers Win

The O. S. L. team won three straight from the Bell Phone in last evening's Commercial league series.

BEAL PHONE
Purdie 145 132 133 134 135 136
Sweeney 125 122 123 124 125 126
Hutchie 115 112 113 114 115 116
Heard 105 102 103 104 105 106

The two leading teams bowl tonight in the Commercial league, viz., Crystals vs. Crabbe.

O. S. L.
Griggs 125 122 123 124 125 126
Graber 115 112 113 114 115 116
Ola 105 102 103 104 105 106
Pearson 95 92 93 94 95 96
Vand 85 82 83 84 85 86

Mr. Pearson was high man with 23 total. A two-man tournament will be bowled tonight. All Commercial league players are invited to enter. Eight teams have already entered and this promises to be one of the big events of the season.

Turk Goes to Mat.

RACINE, Wis., March 14.—Dora Daulton, the Terrible Turk, who advertised to throw three men, two falls each, in ninety minutes here, has lost the match. The first man to go on was Matt Henderson of Chicago, whom the Turk threw twice, in 3:30 and 3:30. "Orphan" John J. Rooney was then thrown in eight minutes. But the second fall went to Rooney, who threw the Turk in ten minutes. This is the first decision Rooney has ever secured over the Turk.

Salt Lake Loses.

Special to The Tribune.
POCAHELLO, Ida., March 14.—Jack Price was knocked out last evening by young Frank Warren in the fifth round of an exciting and fast fight. Both men went to the hospital, but Price was kept in until a fight was made on the 16th. Price was down for the count. It was one of the hardest fights ever seen in this section.

Chicago, 6; Tacoma, 2.

NORTH PRESCO, Cal., March 14.—In a little game, devoid of features, the Chicago National League defeated Tacoma here today by a 6 to 2 score. Mike Fisher, three pitchers in the box, two of them being youngsters, experienced the most of the game. One was Hastings and the other Brown. Neither was effective. The two of them allowed fifteen hits, Thomas won in three innings, but did very poor work.

NEVADA PEOPLE HAPPY.

Twenty-Second Session of Legislature Has Adjourned.

RENO, Nev., March 14.—The twenty-second session of the Nevada Legislature came to an end at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when both houses adjourned sine die. Until the final two weeks of the session nothing of unusual interest was brought before the body, but from that portance came up. The gambling legislation was the most startling of any, the lawmakers in their zeal having repealed every restrictive gambling and liquor law on the books except one, that of placing a license on prize-fighting. The bills were all approved by Gov. Sparks.

SCORE DIE IN TENEMENT FIRE

Holocaust Occurs in New York.

Forty Persons Injured, a Number Fatally--Two Hundred Homeless.

Fire Escapes Blocked and Many Persons Roasted to Death in Presence of Hundreds.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Nineteen persons dead, two score injured, some so seriously that they may die, and nearly 200 persons temporarily homeless, is in brief the story of New York's latest fire horror. The victims of the disaster were typical East Side people. The scene, a typical tenement, and the incidents attending it were in many ways peculiar to that cosmopolitan quarter.

Reckless Display of Heroism.

To apparently reckless displays of heroism shown by firemen, policemen and volunteer rescuers alone is due the fact that the number of dead is not greater. Two hundred persons herded in the big five-story double-decker tenement house were sleeping when flames from an over-turned or exploding kerosene lamp in the basement spread throughout the structure and wrapped the entire building in flames, almost before an alarm had been sounded.

Thrilling Rescues.

Thrilling rescues and daring leaps for life were made over and over again as firemen, policemen and volunteer rescuers were carried from the blazing building. Firemen climbed the walls on either scaling ladders, braved the flames and reached the imperiled tenants. Of the bodies thus recovered only ten have been identified.

Identified Dead.

JESSIE COHEN, aged 15.
GASHION FUSCH, aged 39.
HARRY KAUFMAN, aged 19.
SARAH KLINE, aged 60.
ROSE MILLER, aged 4.
MORRIS LEVINE, aged 5 months.
IDA MUSKOWITZ, aged 19.
BELLE SEIDLER, aged 29.
HARRY SEIDLER, aged 11.
RACHAEL SOLOMON, aged 45.
JACOB SOLOMON, aged 16.
ISAAC SOLOMON, aged 18.
ROSE WEINER, aged 28.
SANDER WEINER, aged 4.

Crowded fire escapes in the rear of the tenement house were largely responsible for so many deaths and injuries among its population, which approached 300 souls.

Heartrending Scenes.

The scenes about the building after the fire was over and when the search for the dead was begun were heartrending. Nothing so pitiful of such proportions has been in New York City since the Slocum disaster, in which 1000 persons, nearly all of them women and children, lost their lives.

People Panic Stricken.

The flames had spread with startling rapidity and when the persons who had been asleep on the upper floors awoke they found themselves confronted by a wall of fire on every side. The panic-stricken people fighting for their lives rushed to the fire escapes only to find them littered with rubbish of all descriptions and almost impassable. Down through these cluttered narrow passageways flowed a stream of humanity.

Roasted to Death.

On some of the escapes the rubbish was so closely packed that it became impossible to pass certain points, and men, women and children stood literally roasted to death as the flames roared through windows around.

One of the escapes, which ended near the roof of a shed about twenty feet above the ground, had been manned by Policeman John J. Dwan, who had run a plank across to the window of an adjoining building. Nearly a dozen persons were carried across this narrow bridge by the policeman, until the flames began to sweep around the lower end of the fire escape.

Heroism of Policeman.

Rushing into the fire the policeman saved a little child and started on the last return trip across to the place of safety. He had made only half the distance when the plank, burned more than half through, broke where it rested on the fire escape, and the rescuer and rescued fell to the stone paved yard twenty feet below. The man struck fairly on his back and one of his shoulders was shattered by the force of the fall. The child was uninjured.

Becomes Fiery Furnace.

In the meantime the firemen had run up ladders at other points around the building and dozens of people were being taken from the crowded fire escapes and upper windows. By this time the building was a furnace and the rescues were effected in many cases only after the greatest show of bravery on the part of the firemen.

Heroes Developed.

Heroes developed at this time. Lieut. Bonner, son of the former fire chief, ascended the now red-hot fire escape five times. Four times he came down with a woman or a child in his arms. The fifth time he was making for the street with an unconscious woman when his strength gave way. He staggered and would have fallen to death had not a comrade come to his assistance.

Saves Two Lives.

As Bonner reached a fourth-story window on one of his ascents and dragged a little girl from a window where she stood surrounded by flames, she pleaded with him to leave her on the escape and go in after her little brother. He had fallen unconscious and was roasting, she said. Bonner jumped through the window and it seemed to those below as if he was going to a funeral. He found the little boy just inside the window and carried him out.

Bonner's Feat Repeated.

Fireman Hannigan repeated Bonner's feat on the third floor, rescuing Miss Fannie Ginsberg.

A woman, her night dress blazing, was seen crawling out of a window and start down the fire escape from the top floor. The hot iron blistered her feet and burnt into her flesh, but she continued on. The scaling ladders were out of order, the escape was a mere plank and almost reached her, when a belch of flames covered her like a wave and bore her down. She fell back and died in sight of the horror-stricken crowd.

The position of those who had taken refuge in the rubbish-choked fire escapes became more and more desperate every minute. They feared to jump and they could not wait until the scaling ladders reached them, so intense was the heat. Now and then one would jump to the ground with a scream.

Throws Baby From Window.

A baby was flung into the arms of a policeman below by its fear-crazed mother. Just as the policeman caught the child the mother dived to the ground. Her hands were pressed against the head and he fell unconscious. The woman escaped injury by the fall, but she had been badly burned. The baby was uninjured.

Death was reaping a harvest on other fire escapes as well as on the building. At the rear two men and two women were seen on the escapes. The women came first and every step they made was blocked by some box of rubbish. They were forced to turn back. The men would then come to their assistance and hurl the obstruction into the yard. The quartette were descending slowly between the third and fourth floors when flames burst from the windows and the women were seen to be roasted alive.

The flames darted up from the third floor windows, enveloped the two men and women. They fell and were roasted to death. Their bodies were brought down by the firemen.

Through the smoke another figure was seen on the fire escape on the fifth floor. No one could tell whether it was a man or woman. The clothes were aflame. In a moment the victim sank to the escape and died.

Overcome by Flames.

On the top of the fire escape at the other side of the house lay three bodies. Mrs. Solomon and her two sons, Isaac and Jacob. They had been overcome there by the flames. Two other members of the Solomon family were seen to escape, but they were then taken back to the burning building. The elder Solomon, the husband and father, was one of those rescued by Patrolman Dwan. When he reached the street his whiskers had been burned off and he was unable to utter a word.

Finds Bodies of Loved Ones.

For more than an hour he had been wandering around in this condition, searching for his family, when he came upon the bodies after they had been removed from the fire escape. As he recognized the charred remains he broke into a moaning weeping, with agonized cries of:

"Mein Kinder, Mein Kinder." His experience was paralleled by dozens of others in the house.

Under the fire was under control the street was filled with half-dressed weeping people, seeking for their relatives, imploring the policemen to go into the burning building and rescue the loved ones whom they believed perished. Yet the fire could not be seen. Some jewelry left in his apartment and begged a fireman to save it for him.

Saved Her Baby Boy.

The desperate resourcefulness of some mother in her effort to save the lives of her children was shown when a woman fell from a high window in the burning building and lighted gently upon a heap of snow. In the center of the bundle wrapped around by several thicknesses of blanket and comforters was found a four-year-old boy, who suffered not at all from his unusual experience. The fate of the mother is not known.

One cause of the terrible loss of life was due to negligence in failing to keep the fire escapes clear. The fire was not only fastened tight, but also frozen. As the flames rushed up the stairs the tenants dashed for the door. They found the door, which should have been fastened open, fastened down. Unable to turn it open and with the fire by the surging mass below, numbers were burned to death.

SUPERIOR MERIT.

Remarkable Curative Properties of a Remedy for Indigestion and Stomach Weakness.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a preparation for the cure of dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion and stomach trouble, are of great success as a cure for these troubles. The food is prepared for digestion and weakness of the stomach and digestive organs only, and is not recommended or advised for any other disease.

It is not a cure-all, but for any stomach trouble, it is the most reliable and sensible remedy that can be found with the prospect of a permanent cure. It is composed of vegetable and mineral ingredients, and is pleasant to taste. It is a pure and golden seal, every one of which acts effectively in digesting the food eaten, thereby resting and invigorating the weak stomach; rest is nature's cure for any disease, but you cannot rest the stomach until it is put into something that will do its work or assist in the digestion of food.

Exactly what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do is a grain of the digestive principle contained in them will digest 200 grains of meat, eggs or similar wholesome foods, and will digest the food whether the stomach is in working order or not, thereby nourishing the body and restoring the stomach at the same time, and rest and nourishment is nature's cure for any weakness.

Persons run down in flesh and appetite these tablets build up the system and increase flesh, because they digest food-forming food, which the weak stomach cannot digest. They also act as a gastric juice and prevent fermentation, acidity and sour watery risings.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores at 50 cents per package.

TRUMPET BLAST.

(Continued from Page 1.)

answer is that a man who denies the necessity for revelation, and denies none will be given, is not likely to get any. That is exactly our position as a church towards the other Christian churches. Then deny the necessity for revelation, the "canon of scripture is full," and hence we say they cannot get it.

No Revelations.

Taking this truth for granted, then let me here say that on one Sunday evening, during the summer of 1904, at a young man's conference in the Tabernacle at Ogden, President Smith in substance and effect, said: "It is true that the church has been in the world for many years. I hope to see it in that audience who had been taught to believe all their lives that the church was guided by continuous revelation, who were taught at this declaration. The thought was forced upon them, 'If this is true, then Mormonism is a false religion, because the Master on earth gave unto mankind the greatest commandment, i. e., 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart.' Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. If these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.' If Joseph F. Smith spoke the truth, then no further revelation is needed until the people learned to live this commandment; and when they learned to live this commandment, no more revelations would be needed as that would comprehend the whole of God's attributes and would be a fullness of his spirit and his righteousness. If Joseph Smith, the prophet, was sent of God, then Joseph F. Smith is not, because his teachings are not a complete revelation of the basic philosophy of the prophet Joseph Smith on which this church is founded."

No Right of Ouster.

As a further reason why I should not get out of the church, I answer: This church is mine, in common with the other members of the church; I have defended it when it has been assailed; I have reported its doctrine and lived its precepts; I have invested my earthly substance in its physical upbuilding; my children have been born in it, and my wife looks to it for spiritual instruction and consolation. I have no difference with the church, I have no quarrel with its members, only with individuals who are misusing the church, as I believe conscientiously, it may be, but still misusing it. My children are used to see the church in its place as an honored society in this land; consistent with its own doctrine and principles, and with the laws of the country, for the plain teaching of the New Testament and of our own Divine Commandments, as mentioned in another place in this paper, is in strict conformity with the spirit and letter of the laws of the United States. I am not a member of any other land where we may dwell.

Again, I decline to leave this church, or to be forced to leave it, because I am not a member of it, and I use my powers and my life according to the laws imposed by our Creator, and so long as this is true, I must remain in it. I have the right to the fellowship and service of this church, as an individual, and I must remain in it. I am at liberty to pursue such investigations and to reach such conclusions as I may wish, and to publish such conclusions, provided they are matters of public interest. In brief, I have a right to this church, and unless other cause shall arise, I cannot be excluded from it without injustice.

Free Speech and Liberty of Conscience.

I demand for myself and for all the members of the church liberty to think and to act and to speak. When I say this I do not mean that it shall be restricted to private conversation or to the pulpit and the sanctuaries of the church as such. I mean that I have the right to express my views on matters of public interest, never been disputed. I leave it to the consciences of the Latter-day Saints to answer as to whether or not they have as much right to express their views on matters of public interest as I have. I have liberty only to speak such things as will be to the advantage of the church, and I have liberty to say just about what they please in the pulpit as well as out of it. All civilization agrees that a man has the right to use his intellect in any manner he sees fit, provided he does not interfere with the rights of others. This principle is the basis of all free speech studies he pleases; and, secondly, to publish them when and where he pleases. The church has no right to prevent one of its members from expressing his views on matters of public interest as possible as his view. Others of its members may similarly use the pulpit and the sanctuaries of the church to express their views. To say that this is dangerous, and that this the church could be led astray, is to say that error is stronger than truth, and that truth is weaker than error. To say that this is dangerous, and that this the church could be led astray, is to say that error is stronger than truth, and that truth is weaker than error. To say that this is dangerous, and that this the church could be led astray, is to say that error is stronger than truth, and that truth is weaker than error.

Truth Easy of Proof.

Truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: "The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist, and therefore cannot be seen or heard nor felt. One keen ethical writer thus concisely sums up the argument: 'The truth is what exists; error is what does not exist. So it is palpably easier to prove that which exists, and therefore can be seen and heard and felt, than what does not exist,